

EMPLOYMENT LAW ADVICE

The following solicitors have been briefed by the society as to how Pernicious Anaemia affects some patients' work. The solicitors named below have an appreciation of the nature of Pernicious Anaemia and that any workplace issues must be addressed within the framework of current employment law.

Please note that we do not recommend these particular solicitors but have spent time with them so that they will understand that the symptoms of Pernicious Anaemia do not miraculously disappear once treatment has commenced for some patients.

You should discuss payments and costs with the individual solicitor.
